By Jeffrey Pfeffer May 23, 2016 A big country club in Boston's Back Bay -- the Westwood Country Club -- saw its membership decline from more than 1,400 in the 1970s to fewer than 100 in the late 1980s. But things started to turn around in the early 2000s: Westwood's membership began to grow. This is a somewhat surprising development, since smaller country clubs have often lost members as larger ones have expanded. Indeed, a January 2006 cover story of Golf World magazine cited a study finding that 25 percent of small country clubs in the United States had closed in the prior decade,
