Guide November 2, 2012 Written by Josiah Green Text and photos courtesy of Creatureclickernews.com.  Update: An update that corrects a number of errors has been added in the additional notes near the bottom of this post. If you are interested in learning more about the update, please click here. No one expected a Wild Pack Piloting to be the winner at PAX East - but it was. Hadik and his team took the title at the 9th PAX East Wild Pack Tournament in Boston. MA. How did they do it? In the face of adversity. For the first round there were 20 teams, and almost 20 players. But once some rigorous strategy and wiring skills were applied, they managed to defeat all of their opponents and pull away from the current pack leader, Cursed Turtle Wilderness. During the course of the tournament, they inevitably encountered the Curse of Weirdness sometimes stacking rewards to move beyond fast levels and avoiding going over the max mana to avoid losing them. But they simply persevered and some good old fashioned repairs in the final rounds enabled them to drive past the unwary Shotgun Skelly Gap Keep and claim the title of PAX East Champions. Hadik Announces PAX East Champion So how did they do it? We got chatted with one of the players directly involved on IRC the day after PAX East to find out, and learned a whole lot about this new area of the Creature Kingdom and the players who are discovering it! We also got Mokchi, one of the Makers/Players who helped design the new game, to take us under the Creature Loader hood in the form of a video interview. You can check that out here. But what about you, reader? Did you go to PAX East 2012 and win an awesome game? Did you know that there was a Strange Electronics in town? Are you someone who helped design the new game? Come on, let us know in the comments below. ---- How did you think you would do? Well, in our convention secret single elimination tournament we played five rounds of Quake 3 Arena. And we lost every single match. At PAX East, we kept that same game with the only major difference being we gave random power ups to all of the players. And of course, we had a high variance event with a variable level cap. We felt pretty good about this, as we felt we had a good mix of levels using a
