of pi by paulaThe predictive utility of growth dynamics in children with Prader-Willi syndrome. The purpose of this study was to investigate the utility of a standardized weight-for-height z-score (WFHz) and a predicted adult weight-for-height (APW) z-score for the prediction of adult stature, lean tissue mass, and fat mass in children with Prader-Willi syndrome (PWS). Heights, body mass indices, APW, and WFHz were obtained from 213 children with PWS aged 4.2-22.1 years at the onset of the study. A cross-sectional design was utilized to determine whether a single measurement of APW/WFHz correlated with adult stature, lean tissue mass, or fat mass. PWS patients were aged at the onset of the study from 4.2 to 22.1 years (mean: 11.1 years). One hundred and twelve of the patients were male and 101 were female. Adult height:sitting height ratio, age at peak height velocity (APHV), lean tissue mass, and fat mass were:0.74+/-0.11, 11.7+/-4.5 years, 32.7+/-1.2 kg, and 21.2+/-7.4 kg, respectively. APHV was not correlated with adult height:sitting height ratio. WFHz and APW correlated with age at onset, adult height:sitting height ratio, lean tissue mass, and fat mass. With regard to lean tissue mass, an APW of -4.0 approximately -2.4 represented 1 SD below the mean, whereas with regard to fat mass, an APW of -2.0 approximately 0.6 represented 1 SD below the mean. The present study suggests that AP
