SPM Surface Pro is an optional flexible, portable support surface that fits in a hard drive tray to log CNC Cut · What's on the agenda when President Obama meets with House Democratic leaders on Wednesday? The deficit, of course. Speaker of the House John Boehner has been making the point for weeks that it's not the congressional GOP's job to make cuts in Social Security and Medicare. But the fact remains that deficit reduction must happen, and Obama and Boehner are staring each other down as they prepare for their first face-to-face meeting. Talks between Boehner and Obama may have gotten off to a rough start. Boehner walked out on an earlier meeting with Obama because the president refused to commit to a "balanced approach" to budget reform. The president wants to link spending cuts to a bipartisan effort to raise the federal borrowing limit, but Boehner has made clear that he'll only accept spending cuts with a "grand bargain" that includes tax increases. Boehner called a press conference on Tuesday to hammer out the details of his plan for the debt ceiling, saying that he plans to offer "bold reforms" to bring in the "one-two punch" approach to deficit reduction. He said that that approach is a "framework" that requires "fiscal discipline" and "shared sacrifice." Boehner said that this plan, which includes both spending cuts and tax increase
