x-plane 11 ixeg 737-300 v1.2 " XPlane11IXEG737300V12versiondownload.The present invention relates to a disk drive, and more particularly to a disk drive with a substrate load/unload function. A conventional disk drive includes a magnetic disk and an actuator which moves across a magnetic surface of the magnetic disk. The actuator includes a suspension which supports a slider, and an actuator body which is mounted on an actuator arm. A portion of the actuator body mounted on the actuator arm rotates and swings across the magnetic surface of the magnetic disk to seek a desired location on the magnetic disk surface, thereby moving the slider. A voice coil motor which includes a coil and a magnet is provided to rotate the actuator. A voice coil motor torque can be transmitted to the actuator, and the actuator can be used as a swing motor. When the actuator is driven by the voice coil motor, a load force can be produced in the suspension. A technique for improving the load characteristic of the suspension is disclosed in, for example, Japanese Patent Application Publication No. 2002-6517. A suspension for an actuator of a conventional disk drive has been proposed in, for example, Japanese Patent Application Publication No. 2002-94110. In the conventional disk drive, an electrically conductive particle is adhered to an end portion of a suspension in order to reduce eddy current generation. This technique is disclosed in, for example, Japanese Patent Application Publication No. H11-324059. In the conventional disk drive, the load of the suspension is adjusted by changing the distance between a magnet and a coil. However, it is difficult to change the distance between the magnet and the coil from a thin structure. When the suspension is subject to an external load in the conventional disk drive, the suspension undergoes bending in an impact direction at the time of the impact. The bending is produced due to the difference in elastic constants among the respective portions of the suspension. Due to the bending, the impact force is applied to a portion of the suspension which is more susceptible to the bending. The applied impact force is thus concentrated on the more susceptible portion. This is problematic in that a crack is likely to occur in the more susceptible portion. If a suspension portion which is subject to the bending is located in an outer region of a voice coil motor, the suspension portion can be less susceptible to the
