intelliscore ensemble 8.1 crack Æintelliscore ensemble 8.1 cracked..Just as Kent St. Palmetto State standout Marcus Allen has returned to school, SoCon officials are offering him a few more opportunities to continue to play basketball. Allen, a guard who is 6-foot-3 and 185 pounds, has been weighing his options of whether to attend Augusta University in Augusta, Ga., or to play basketball at James Madison University in Harrisonburg, Va. He has also been contacted by the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and Campbell University in North Carolina, according to a report on Packet Now. Allen said he's also received scholarship offers from William and Mary and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. But he said he hadn't decided on any of the schools. "I haven't had much time to think about it and I don't know which one I'll choose yet," he said.

Allen has spent this year following up on some of the other offers he received earlier this year. Allen was a member of the Packet Now All-Area third team last year. He led Palmetto State to a 20-5 record, finishing with a 6-2 record in dual action with the Eagles. Allen helped lead Palmetto State to the Region 6-AA championship. He was one of only three Palmetto State players with more than 1,000 points and 400 rebounds last year. Allen also played in the NAIA National Tournament. After Allen spent this past offseason playing AAU, he decided that Palmetto State was the best fit for him. Allen said he's excited about the Palmetto State coaching staff. "Palmetto State is a great school," Allen said. "I've been telling friends and family to come watch the games. You can see the talent. Coach (Craig) Mulcare and the assistant coaches, they do a good job of developing players." Allen said the coaching staff is a big reason for him choosing Palmetto State. "That's a big factor for me," he said. "If the coaches are going to develop you, you want a good coaching staff. I'm going there for
