Aging in free mucosal flaps may result in significant functional and aesthetic changes. This study assesses the results and patterns of aging on the muscle and fatty flaps harvested in 116 patients, with a mean follow-up of 5.3 years (1.5-12 years). There were no statistically significant differences in major complication rate, flap viability, aesthetic characteristics, and overall flap loss between patients aged less than 50 and those aged more than 50. However, the complications occurring in the first two postoperative years were significantly more frequent in elderly patients. To prevent this phenomenon, the authors propose routine intraoperative heparinization of elderly patients./** * @class elFinder style 'custom' ** @author bartvh */ /* edit */ .elfinder-header, .elfinder-toolbar { background: #
